

CHAMP CLARK FINED.

His Fellow-Congressmen Gallantly Come To the Rescue.

WASHINGTON, D. C. December 18.—Congressman Champ Clark's case in the district police court was disposed of in short order to-day. A fine of $25 was imposed and the Missouri delegation insisted on paying it. The republican members, Mr. Joy and Mr. Bartholdt, chipped in with their democratic colleagues and made up the amount. The colored politician, Marcellus Lyeurgus West, who made the complaint did not appear. He sent a letter to the prosecuting attorney reading:

"In view of the surrounding circumstances at the time of the attack upon me by Mr. Clark on December 9 last, I would respectfully ask that the case be dismissed. Mr. Clark has expressed regret for the occurrence, and I am satisfied that this course should be pursued."

"What does he mean by the surrounding circumstances?" the Judge asked.

There was no answer.

"Is this letter from the prosecuting witness?" was the next question.

"It bears his signature," said the district attorney.

"What was the nature of the assault?" asked the court.

"A knife cut on the throat," replied the district attorney.

"There was no serious injury," explained Mr. Joseph Shillington, the counsel for Mr. Clark, "and the prosecuting witness has been out ever since the affair."

The judge asked the district attorney if he wanted to follow the suggestion of the prosecuting witness and dismiss the case. The attorney replied that he thought the court should dispose of the case. He indicated that a fine of about $25 would satisfy the government.

Mr. Clark's counsel said that he would enter a formal plea of guilty. The court imposed the fine suggested by common consent. The Missouri delegation, with a view of showing their confidence in Mr. Clark, immediately made up the amount and paid the fine.

COL. AND MRS. BULLITT.

The Latter Publishes a Bitter Answer to the Former's Card.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 17.—Colonel and Mrs. Cuthbert Bullitt have each written a card to the local papers here relative to their separation. That of Colonel Bullitt is as follows:

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 13.—To the press of Louisville: I am here on a visit to my brother's family, Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Crosby, and Mr. and Mrs. Chouteau Smith, unhappily now confined with a second attack of the grippe, and too unwell to write or to return home to calm down as much as possible the excitement in regard to the domestic troubles, which ought not to exist between my wife and myself.

Foreseeing that it would culminate after she had consulted her lawyer in regard to a separation, I concluded to come here with a view of avoiding the gossip and scandal attending it and have never written or spoken a word about our affairs, though importuned by the press here, and all unless forced to.

My marriage, which took place some fourteen months ago, was heralded by my legion of friends and the press generally with so much kindness, that I indulge the hope they will deal gently with me now, while I require not sympathy, but simply justice.

CUTHBERT BULLITT.

The last Mrs. Bullitt wrote is as follows:

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 16, '93.—I have noticed "A Card" in the Commerical-Journal and Commercial, a day or two since, from the pen of Colonel Cuthbert Bullitt, who is now in St. Louis, in which he says "he is too unwell to return here to quiet the excitement which our separation has created and which disturbance ought not to exist between his wife and himself, and that he asks no sympathy, but simply justice." It is rather too late to lock up the house after the thief is in. Perhaps that "legion" of his friends that he refers to, in his letter would advise him, had they a chance to have rendered a little of that loudly proclaimed justice to the woman he calls wife and they would not have been parted, and trouble would not now be in existence. But any proud-spirited woman with self-respect will refuse to support any man and her own family and stand his position and cruelty too, and as Col. C. Bullitt's card has placed me in a false light and thus forced me in self-defense to the front and before the public, I now very reluctantly explain in plain language why I left him.

I grew tired of supporting him altogether and paying all his bills when he had never given me a dollar or contributed one dime to either his own or my support. As honesty is always the best policy, I now lay it before the whole world and abide the consequences as only a true woman will. Very truly,

MRS. CUTHBERT BULLITT.

Indicted Ex-Bank Officials.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., December 19.—The grand jury to-day found true bills of indictment against Mayor E. D. Parce, T. E. Burlingame and E.

ERIE MEDICAL CO. BUFFALO, N. Y.

P. Newman, officials of the bankrupt Bank of Commerce, which was looted early in the summer. The charge in this instance was preferred by J. H. Fitzgerald, of this county, who alleges that Mayor Parce solicited a deposit of $750 for the bank after he was aware that it was in a failing condition, and that it was accepted by the other officials with a full knowledge of the true state of affairs. This is the first indictment against Parce, though a number are pending against Burlingame and Newman. Changes of venue in all the cases have been taken to Taney county, where they will be tried at the next term of court.

HE ASSUMED A NAME.

The Strange History of a Treasury Department Employee at Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 18.—Secretary Carlisle's mail to-day contained a curious letter. To put a stop to the practice of concealing marriages the Secretary a few days ago issued an order that all clerks in the treasury must be carried on the rolls by their legal names. The order had the effect of disclosing a case which was not in contemplation when it was issued.

DEAR SIR:—Having read your recent order regarding employees of the Treasury Department bearing illegal or assumed names, I hasten to set myself right before the department by telling a straightforward and truthful story. Thirty-eight years ago, when but a boy, I left home without the knowledge or consent of my parents and enlisted in the United States navy under the name of —, which name has stuck to me ever since. Under this name I went around the world, to Europe, Asia and Africa, in the years 1857, '58, '59 and '60, on the United States frigate Powhatan, on one of her most eventful cruises. Under this name I sailed with Admiral Farragut during the war and received the medal of honor for meritorious conduct while fighting the Confederate batteries at Port Hudson. I had no reason to assume a name other than to avoid being found by my mother, who, like many other mothers, did not want her boy to go to sea. I have no reason in God's world to feel ashamed in any way of the name I then assumed. My conscience is perfectly clear, and I have always taken good care of the mother I ran away from. Having worn this name thirty-eight years, I desire to continue, if the explanation is satisfactory to yourself and the department. Respectively,

Files Another Divorce Suit.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., December 20.—Young Mrs. Gertrude L. Burnes, who, after a bitter divorce suit, became reconciled last May to her husband, Fielding Burnes, almost an octogenarian, and a brother of Congressman James N. Burnes, of St. Joseph, again brought suit in the circuit court to-day for a divorce from her husband. She charges him with the grossest indignities.

The petition was at once sent for service to Platte City, where the defendant has lived for over forty years. The suit is the result of domestic troubles dating from the marriage day of Mr. and Mrs. Burnes, in July, 1892, and is the fourth which has been brought by them in the circuit courts of Jackson and Platte counties. Mr. Burnes is worth $75,000, and Mrs. Burnes charges that her husband is very miserly.

No Longer Enemies.

S. S. Bigelow handed a check for $5 to Fred Gordon this morning. It was his annual contribution to the confederate home at Higginsville. During the war as lieutenant of the 15th New York cavalry, Mr. Bigelow shot the rebels, but now as a veteran totally blind, he contributes annually to their comfort. There is a great big heart in Lieutenant Bigelow and the ex-rebels appreciate it.—Nevada Democrat.

Much Excitement Over an Elopement.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., Dec. 20.—Medicine township, in this county, is torn up over the elopement of Sherman Constant, a young married man, with Della Coberlee, aged 17 years, a sister of his wife, and daughter of Jesse Coberlee, a wealthy farmer. The guilty couple have several days the start, and it is supposed they have gone to Oklahoma. The father of the girl has offered a reward for the apprehension of Constant, and telegrams received to-day indicate that parties answering their description are under arrest at Lincoln, Neb. Constant is a farmer and a watchmaker. The neighbors of his victim are greatly incensed and would deal harshly with if caught. He deserted a young wife and two children.

Death of Mrs. Kidd.

The death of Mrs. Mary Kidd took place yesterday afternoon at her home four miles north of Beaman. She had pneumonia.

Mrs. Kidd was 84 years old and was the mother of Capt. Kidd, formerly a resident of Georgetown.

The daughter of the deceased arrived from Kansas City this morning, accompanied by her husband. The funeral was held this afternoon.

FIRE AT PRINCETON, MO.

Arbuckle's Opera House and Several Business Houses Destroyed With a Loss of $50,000.

PRINCETON, Mo., Dec. 18.—Fire broke out in the basement of Arbuckle's opera house, at this place, at 2 o'clock this morning, and consumed four of the best business houses in the city. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

The following are the losses: H. J. Alley, building, $4,500; Stanley & Blair, grocers, $5,000; Douain, building $2,000; Jackson Cook, building, $4,500; T. N. Arbuckle, opera house; Album & Sperritt, bakery, $1,500; W. W. White, furniture, $4,000; F. P. Wynne, jewelry, $700; Bolster & Strickmann, printing office, $200; Judson & Son, clothing, $6,000; The Masonic Lodge building, $1,500; J. C. Casteel, dry goods, $7,000; Mercer county court house, $250; W. L. Bearden, photographer, $200; Mrs. S. R. Bryant, millinery, $300.

Nearly all the losses are fully covered by insurance. Arbuckle loses $6,000 above insurance. This is the fourth time this block has been burned in ten years.

HOPKINS VICTORIOUS

He Defeats Swift, the Republican Candidate for Mayor of Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 19.—John P. Hopkins, the democratic candidate for mayor, was elected over George B. Swift, his republican rival, by a majority of 1,387. The total vote was:

| | |
|---------------------------|--------|
| Hopkins (Dem.) | 22,700 |
| Swift (Rep.) | 11,313 |
| Bellins (Socialist Labor) | 517 |
| Wakely (People's Service) | 367 |
| Total | 35,897 |

The vote, which was one of the heaviest ever polled in this city, shows a decided republican gain. The democracy carried the city by 30,000 in the last presidential election and in the county election last month several of the democratic candidates had majorities of 4,000 in the city, which were only overcome by the republican vote in the county.

The weather to-day was all that could be desired for an election day and the full vote of both parties was polled. In several of the down town wards, where the heavy lodging-house vote resides, the contest was very bitter and "scraps" were of frequent occurrence when the police were not on hand. In all other portions of the city the voting progressed without incident.

The jury in the Coughlin trial did not vote. The members of the jury peered from the windows of their warm room in the Revere House early in the morning and concluded it was too frosty to start on a day's journey to the polls. The entire 12 men would have been compelled to make a round of the city in order that each might vote. Only in one instance could two have voted at the same polling place. The jury in the Prendergast trial faced a little better. Such members as cared to vote were allowed to do so, being accompanied to the polling place by a bailiff. Seven of them voted, the remainder being kept at the hotel.

To-night the democrats are jubilant over their victory, while the republicans are consoling themselves with the substantial gains made over two last elections and declare that the city is theirs the next time.

MITCHELL ON HIS WAY.

Orders for Box Seats at the Fight Begin to Come In.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 20.—Charley Mitchell has at last been heard from. He was in Charlotte, N. C., last night and from there sent the following telegram to J. E. Bowden, general manager of the Duval Athletic club, which was delivered early this morning:

I shall be in Jacksonville Thursday evening at 7 o'clock without fail, Billy Thompson accompanying me.

At the Duval club this afternoon this telegram gave a great deal of satisfaction to the sporting men there assembled, and it is said that a big reception will be arranged for the English pugilist.

This morning Secretary McMillan, of the Duval club, received the first order for box tickets in the arena from Dickson and Tabbutt, the well-known theatrical managers and agents in Indianapolis. The order was telegraphed thus:

Reserve for our special car party three boxes seating four persons each. The money was mailed to you this morning.

The second order received was from Mark Simonton of Cincinnati, who takes two box seats. The third was from the turpentine and turpentine firm of Dyal & Upchurch of Race Point, just across the Georgia line.

Edward H. (Snapper) Garrison was today elected official timekeeper of the Duval club. The first official duties of the renowned jockey will probably be performed at the club races on Christmas Day.

Billy Taylor, the well-known baseball man and all round sport, arrived in Jacksonville this morning from New York. When in Philadelphia last week he called on Charley Mitchell and found the Englishman in the very best shape possible. Taylor says of him:

"I saw Mitchell stripped, and I must see that I was surprised at the condition in which I found him. He has no stomach at all, and his broad shoulders and powerful legs show up strong and well. Mitchell has been training daily for many weeks, but he has been keeping it shady. He doesn't lay around for the newspaper men, and so the press of the North hasn't got onto him yet. Every line in his body shows the effects of his fine training. Mitchell said to me: 'I know I am giving away a big thing in weight and reach, but science and generalship will have much to do with winning this victory, and I have been in the ring before.'"

At 4 o'clock this afternoon the Duval Athletic club and Messrs. Colvin and Webster of the State Driving Park association came to an understanding about the era and closed a trade for the use of the old fair grounds and building in East Jacksonville. The plans have been changed slightly and a crew of 100 carpenters will be put to work on the building next Monday morning. The deal with the Sub-Tropical people didn't go through. Some of the stockholders in the syndicate are now laughing in their sleeves to think that they sold out a practically worthless stock for a good price.

Died.

Nellie Mullen, daughter of Emma and Michael Mullen, aged six years, lacking nine days.

The funeral will take place from the house, 922 East Fourteenth St., at 1 o'clock p. m., Dec. 22, and from St. Vincent de Paul church at 1:30. Friends of the family invited to attend.

BRONTE DEMUTH.
A Tribute By the Famous New York Sculptor, Wilson MacDonald.

The flight of a human spirit from out of this "ruddy vesture" of mortal existence is the most ordinary and common of all changes. Twelve hundred million of human beings pass into the spiritual world from this planet every thirty-six years.

Indeed death is in reality beautiful in almost any view, if it is true, as the agnostic says that we pass at the phenomenon of death "into unsympathetic dust" that is peaceful, even restful, indeed eternal rest. If, upon the other hand, we plume our wings with immortal pinions and go out into the light of an eternal day, that is most beautiful; and where there is no night, but that we will meet those we love is soul satisfying—real lovely, harmonious and eternally progressive!

Funerals, instead of gloom, dark drapery, sable plumes, grief and despair, should be occasions of joy, peace and music. This with the aged, who have filled their mission here, should always be joyful instead of sad.

But when a bright, intelligent, sensitive young soul takes its final departure from earth, it is but natural that one should grieve. It is the result of education; we cannot be reconciled to the loss.

For the young genius, my nephew, Bronte Demuth, we mourn for a little season, we cannot help it. Our reason tells it is better for him; our sentiments and our loves tell another story.

Bronte was a super-sensitive spirit—a child of genius—and in this cogwheel, so-called practical and grossly material age, it was not possible that he could be understood. His genius could not be appreciated. The ordinary gatherings of self could never feel the thrill of his impassioned soul. He lived in a better world. The ideal which is the real world. He knew the harmony, the melody, the language of music. He lived in the atmosphere of his divine art. The voices of nature, the sighing winds and the songs of birds fell upon his refined senses.

Glorious boy! When the scenes of earth were fading from his mortal vision and he saw that he was soon to put on the immortal robes of the shadow land, his dying eyes rested upon his favorite and loved violin. He asked that it might be handed to him, and as his spirit was about to take its flight, he ran his weak, thin fingers over the strings for the last time; who can imagine the unspeakable joy he must have felt as the last chords fell upon his fast fading senses.

Think not, ye pilgrims who survive him, that those melodies he invented here, can ever die—they are immortal as he is—they will live in his heart of hearts to be reproduced in other and happier spheres. Nothing beautiful can ever die. Unfortunate boy! He came into this rude world, with all his youth and unblown hopes on the world's heart; his ambition was to charm it with melody and music; and touch it to tears. There is no sympathy with such a soul in this age in which we now live. But that beyond, this spirit, at last, just gone out into the light, is awake to a higher life. Those that loved him here, who are over there, will be present to greet him on that other real and beautiful shore. Grief and sorrow engulfed him here. Joy and gladness will greet him there.

Who can imagine a mother's joy as she clasps her boy, her youngest born, again to her bosom never to part.

I would that some tender friend would plant daisies on the mound that covers his beloved form. For when I come to stand there, I know "the daisies are in a little while," will move to tell me the boy is there.

For a little while, dear boy, good bye. Wait at the portals for your affectionate uncle,

WILSON MACDONALD.

Abraham Lincoln

When leaving his home at Springfield, Ill., to be inaugurated president of the United States, made a farewell address to his old friends and neighbors, in which he said, "NEIGHBORS GIVE YOUR BOYS A CHANCE."

These words come with as much force to-day as they did thirty years ago.

How give them this chance? Up in the Northwest is a great empire waiting for young and sturdy fellows to come and develop it and "grow up with the country." All over this broad land are the young fellows, the boys that Lincoln referred to, seeking to better their condition and get on in life.

Here is their chance!

The country referred to lies along the Northern Pacific R. R. Here you can find pretty much anything you want. In Minnesota, and in the Red River Valley of North Dakota, the finest of prairie lands fitted for wheat and grain, or as well for diversified farming. In Western North Dakota and Montana, are stock ranges limitless in extent, clothed with the most nutritious of grasses.

If a fruit farming region is wanted there is the whole state of Washington to select from.

As for scenic delights the Northern Pacific passes through a country of great beauty.

For Root, and Cascade, the greatest mountain scenery to be seen in the United States from car windows is found. The wonderful bad lands, wonderful in graceful form and glowing color, are a poem. Lakes Pend d'Oreille and Coeur d'Alene, are alone worthy of a trans-continental trip, while they are the fishermen's Ultima Thule. The ride along Clark's Fork of the Columbia River is a daylight dream. To cap the climax this is the only way to reach the far famed Yellowstone Park.

To reach and see all this the Northern Pacific Railroad furnishes trains and service of unsurpassed excellence. The most
